January 21, 1980

Dear Students:

Another academic year has raced by, and I hope that for each of you it was a successful and meaningful period in your life. Doubtless you experienced great pressure as you tried to balance the demands of college with the demands of the personal and social aspects of your life. But, modern education, like modern religion, too often tries to project a hip image which promises easy answers and pleasurable experiences, in exchange for minimal effort. Most of us, however, learn by painful contact with reality that very little that is worthwhile can be gained without great effort, discipline, and personal sacrifice. We might wish that this were not the case, but deep down we know that it is.

Venango Campus provides an environment in which the need for personal sacrifice is to some extent compensated by the beauty of the foothills and the Allegheny River, and by the personal warmth of a close-knit student body and an accessible faculty. Venango Campus is a nice small college where students have the opportunity to explore personal relationships as well as academic subject areas. For those of you leaving us, I hope the future holds opportunities for both personal and career success. For those of you returning next fall, I look forward to another year of challenge and growth. With best wishes, I remain

Sincerely,

Charles Blank

It is at this time that we would like to look back on our days here at Venango Campus and thank those who have helped and supported us in our efforts to further our education. We, the Yearbook Staff, wish to dedicate this yearbook to DALPH O. COOK.

Dalph O. Cook, Assistant Professor of Biology at Clarion State College, obtained his Masters of Science at Syracuse University. He has completed additional graduate work at Central Michigan University and Penn State University. Mr. Cook spent several years in the Armed Services, which he feels taught him, among other things, self-discipline. He regrets not making the service his career. How fortunate for us! In the classroom he is an endless source of wit and wisdom. He can explain complex topics in easy, understandable terms and is always ready to offer help whenever and wherever he can. He always has time for students and student learning regardless of the effort involved. We appreciate his willingness to give of himself and his time and acknowledge his loyalty as a close friend. We have shared times both socially and professionally with Mr. Cook which will always be remembered.

"I learned from the Army that when you have a job to do, no matter how distasteful, that you do that job to the best of your ability." These are the admirable standards he sets for himself and his students. He is most importantly, a dynamic vital person who cares deeply enough for others to give of himself. We hope this dedication adequately expresses the gratitude, respect, and warmth that we feel for Mr. Dalph O. Cook.

"a teacher affects eternity;
he can never tell where his influence stops" —

EDITORS' MESSAGE

We wish to announce the finish of the 1979-80 PATHFINDER. This has been a year of dedication, fun, and also hard work on the part of the staff. It takes a good staff to produce a fine yearbook. The Pathfinder requires planning, photography, artistry, typing, layouts and many other endeavors.

This year's staff was small but efficient. We hope that you enjoy this year's book as much as we enjoyed bringing it to you. We would now like to invite a new generation of students to add to our staff in the coming year. Contact our advisor, Mrs. Duespohl, and see what you can do for your next yearbook!

Your Editors hope to have captured some of the student life here at Venango within this book. We hope you will look back . . . and enjoy.

Speaking of Koppers

"A broadly diversified $1.1 billion-sales company whose product line ranges from blast furnaces to shirt buttons, Koppers went through the recession and the capital spending drought like Jimmy Carter campaigning in Georgia."

—Forbes

"Next year shapes up as a good one. For one thing, as a diversified capital-goods supplier, Koppers stands to benefit as business spending picks up steam. For another, thanks to a stake in pollution controls, it's a likely gainer from new President's strong environmental stress.

—Barron's

"With 239 manufacturing facilities turning out more than 100 types of products which are sold into 13 primary end markets, Koppers can fairly be called . . . a historically logical conglomerate, with each extension of its expertise following naturally from the last."

—Business & Energy International

"Koppers own capital spending is going to continue to be 'very aggressive,' he said, involving more dollars this year than last and 'with 1977 ahead of 1976' . . . the firm has been fortunate to be able to plow back record earnings into facilities expansion while maintaining its dividend yield . . ."

—Pittsburgh Post-Gazette

"Koppers Co. of Pittsburgh is among the many corporations around the country that have made it easier for the public to understand their financial operations."

—Indianapolis News

"Recession hardly took place as far as diversified Koppers Co., Inc. is concerned . . . profitability has been rising for a good span of years."

—Iron Age

". . . an Arthur D. Little market survey projects a tripling of U.S. air and water control equipment sales by 1980 to more than $3 billion . . . Giant corporations with a growing stake in the field include Combustion Engineering, Carborundum, Koppers, Monsanto, General Tire & Rubber, Hercules, Bendix, Textron . . ."

—Cincinnati Enquirer

"A skein of profit increases in recent years has prompted people who follow such things to say, 'Somebody must be doing something right at Koppers Co'."

—The Pittsburgh Press

"Good reviews. Good forecasts."
